Today May 9 Primary Campaigns Getting Under Way

OVER ARIZONA'S HEIGHTS
WHO CAN READ DESTINY?
JAPAN IS TEACHING US
ONE DEPRESSION CURE

GALLUP, N. M.—This is written of W. B. Storey's Santa Fe train, the Chief, as finely equipped and managed as any that runs on American railroads.

At this moment, leaving Ashfork, Ariz., 5,143 feet above sea level, two heavy engines are hauling the train eastward up a steep winding grade to Supai, where one engine is dropped, nearly 2,000 feet higher.

The New Mexico mountains are covered with beautiful pine trees and deep snow.

The engines pour out thick black smoke from their oil fires. Billions of tiny creatures, whose remains deposited on the ocean's bed millions of years ago formed the oil wells used today, could not imagine their destiny.

They could not dream that energy stored up in their tiny bodies would haul millions of pounds over high mountains and eventually be poured out in the dust of black smoke by grunting locomotives.

We that fuss and worry on the earth have as little idea concerning our destiny, or why we were put here.

BUT AT LEAST we know a little more than some of our humbler but equally meritorious brothers.

For instance, Buster, champion steer of the Los Angeles Stock show, has been bought for $1.40 a pound live weight, soon to become roasts and steaks, by Frank M. Hauser, who keeps a food market at Santa Monica.

The Pacific coast is proud to know that its champion steer brought a higher price at auction than Chicago champion, Briarcliff Thickett, an Aberdeen-Angus yearling, that sold for only $1.20 a pound. That, by the way, is Chicago's lowest price for a champion steer in eight years.

THOSE who believe that wishing and talking will bring peace are disturbed by actual happenings.

Japan will do as she pleases in China, and it pleases her to take Manchuria or most of it. The taking may not be called "war," but it will kill many Chinese. Chinese students, rioting, demanding real war, will probably get a good enough imitation. The Chinese are brave as any people, but, like ourselves they are not prepared for real trouble. Japan will show them that not to be prepared is dangerous.

THE REPUBLIC of Salvador, according to dispatches from San Salvador, is now ruled by a military triumvirate, the president deposed.

Prudhomme's saying "monarchies are destroyed by poverty, republics by wealth" did not tell us everything.

Poverty in national form threatens Germany's republic. This republic was doing nicely in spite of its astounding wealth, until the puzzled depression came and that depression will pass, later it will come back, nobody will know why it passed or why it returned.

ONE THING is certain, this world's authorities, those that control its wealth, must do something about the inadequate supply of real money.

Voters throughout the county and state will go to the polls May 9, 1932, to ballot for primary candidates, instead of in August, because of changes in the Ohio election code and, as a result, the holiday season this year finds a number of individual campaigns well under way and others in the incipient stages.

State, district and county offices are open for the spring nominations. Interest in the state battles has been aroused by announcements by two Republican gubernatorial candidates, David Ingalls, assistant secretary of the navy, and Clarence Brown, secretary of state, with former Gov. Myers V. Cooper figuring as another entry.

County Candidates Active
In Columbiana county, candidates for virtually every office save those of auditor and surveyor have been mentioned. These two will not be listed on the 1932 ticket.

John C. Litty of Salem, county treasurer, who took office last September, although chosen at the November, 1930, election, will be up for re-nomination and re-election.

Mrs. Edith Elliott, who took office as county recorder last January, will be a candidate to succeed herself.

Five names are mentioned in connection with the sheriff's office. The list includes J. Howard Sinclair, of Hanoverton; Frank Ballantine, Norman Peters and Thomas Cartwright of Salem; and Herbert McBride of Lisbon.

Probate Judge Lodge Riddle will be a candidate on the judicial ticket to succeed himself.

Lenz Taught Her Bridge—Now She's A "Hated" Rival

BY LORENA A. HICKOK
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—"The elder statesmen" some years ago gave a certain young woman named Josephine Murphy her first lessons in the game of bridge—partly, she thinks, "because they thought it would be a good joke to make a bridge expert out of a woman."

Next week she starts on a six weeks' contract bridge match, one woman playing with three men, and if she and her partner win, it will cost one of her teachers, Sidney S. Lenz, $1,000.

She's Mrs. Culbertson

Josephine Murphy is now Mrs. Ely Culbertson, wife of the young man who came charging out of Russia to upset the bridge tables of the U. S. A., and the match is to be the Culbertson system of contract bridge bidding against the Lenz system, with a $5,000 Culbertson wager against a $1,000 wager by Lenz. Six weeks of play, 150 rubbers—no quarter asked or given.

Mrs. Culbertson is going to start off next Monday evening by giving a dinner party for 25 guests before she sits down to play.

"Oh, that won't be any bother," she said today. "I'll arrange everything right after I get up that morning."

Cases involving violation of liquor laws, reckless driving, assault and battery and other criminal charges must be tried elsewhere after the New Year.

County Received Fines

"It seems to me that from the standpoint of the best interest of the county, this was not the thing to do," Judge Riddle said. "True,

Probe Lynching In Salisbury, Md.

(By Associated Press)
Salisbury, Md., Dec. 5.—Wicomico county officials conferred today on what action would be taken in connection with the lynching last night of Mack Williams, 35-year-old Negro, who was taken from a hospital cot and hanged in the courtyard a few hours after he had slain his employer, Daniel J. Elliott.

After hanging Williams the crowd burned his body at the edge of the Negro district.

Governor Albert C. Ritchie cut short a visit to New York and started for Baltimore to conduct an investigation.

The lynch spirit flamed a short time before the actual attempt when it was learned Williams had not died, as first reported, from wounds inflicted by himself and by Daniel J. Elliott, Jr., son of the slain man.

Rumor of Star's Wedding Arouses Varied Reports

(By Associated Press)
LAS VEGAS, NEV., Dec. 5.—

A ceremony in which Clara Bow, red haired film star, reportedly became the bride of Rex Bell, her actor-suitor, was the subject of conflicting reports today.

Bell, on whose ranch Miss Bow has been in seclusion several months to regain her health, denied they were married. Harley Harmon, district attorney here, and William Schuyler, deputy county clerk, declared they were witnesses to the wedding ceremony.

District Judge Orr, named as performing the ceremony, would neither affirm nor deny. The judge, who has married many Hollywood celebrities, said he did not wish to discuss the matter.

The wedding, according to Harmon and Schuyler, took place Thursday night. A mar-

QUAKERS FACE RIVALS AGAIN

Tackle Alliance Gridders
This Afternoon In Benefit Tilt

Weakened by the absence of three regular linemen and illness and injury of two others, Salem High's varsity football machine tackles its traditional gridiron foe from Alliance High at Mount Union college stadium, Alliance, at 2:15 this afternoon.

Victorious over the Quakers by a 12-2 score in their annual Thanksgiving day clash last week, the Aviators were confident of another triumph in today's clash, arranged as a post-season affair for the benefit of Alliance charities. Salem's share of the proceeds will go to the school's athletic association fund.

Ineligibility forced Merle Whitcomb, guard, out of the lineup while two others, Norman Early and Loren Battin, tackles, have turned in their uniforms. William Corso, varsity center, is not expected to start by Coach Floyd W. Stone because of illness which kept him from practice early in the week while James Fisher, another varsity lineman, is incapacitated by injuries which kept him out of last week's clash with the Aviators.

DEMOCRATS IN HOUSE GATHER TO SEAT GARNER

Confident of Seizing Control Held by Republicans Since 1918

VOTE ON WET-DRY
ISSUE IS LOOMING

5,000 Bills on Every Imaginable Topic Already Filed with Clerks

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—With an eye on a fast start, party groups and blocs in congress today speeded final preparations for Monday's opening of a momentous session.

The house Democrats, confident of seizing the control held by Republicans since 1918, gathered to nominate John N. Garner of Texas for speaker and Henry T. Rainey of Illinois for floor leader, and to formulate party procedure on the issues which leadership has thrust upon them.

Prepare Program

They began preparing also with their senate colleagues a broad legislative program, which they hope to make a pre-convention platform, laying before the people of the country the party's ideas for economic betterment.

Senate Republicans organized yesterday without aid of their independent element, were confident of controlling their chamber by virtue of majority, despite internal friction over the president pro tem, George Moses of New Hampshire.

Prohibition vote advocates threw their weight behind the generally supported loosening of house rules, while the group of independents, Republican and Democrat and Farmer Labor, pledged itself to support the most liberal program offered.

Will Act On Benchhead

A section of the senate Republicans settled down to decide whether to try reducing the Democratic contingent by barring John H. Bankhead of Alabama, whose seat is contested.

Gathering in the house chamber where early in the week the Republicans chose their leaders was first on the caucus program. Rules were next for attention with an almost certain approval of a liberal program.

Most controversial issue before the caucus was a proposal to create a steering committee, which would increase the leadership group from two or three to eleven.

The caucus also had to elect six members of the ways and means committee, a house clerk to replace Republicans William Tyler Page, a sergeant at arms, doorkeeper and other minor officers.

Jumping the gun, hundreds of members of both house and senate have already filed with their clerks about 5,000 bills on every imaginable topic.

Talks Are Given At Willow Grove

Ralph Crawford discussed "Do's and Don'ts for Christmas Mailing" at a meeting of Willow Grove grange Friday evening at the hall, North Georgetown rd.

A talk on "The Trend of Chatel Mortgage Borrowing in Ohio," was given by Mrs. Howard Burton.

"The Greatest Need of Rural America" was the theme of a talk by W. H. Boone. The roll call response was "Your biggest mistake in buying." Group singing formed a part of the program.

PLEA FOR POLITICS

Congress convenes Dec. 7. This occasion, sorry to say, is awaited with the breathless fear that might be expected to follow a national alarm of some gigantic calamity to fall on that date. Americans cower in prospect of a legislative session as though it were a juggernaut headed straight for their several precious bodies.

This is a discouraging comment on the existing state of politics, but it is, at the same time, a belittling comment on faith in the republican form of government. Other congresses have convened in troublous times and other generations have been fearfully apprehensive, yet no cataclysmic disasters have been precipitated. The national system of checks and balances has kept the nation on a reasonably even keel this far in its course, and it will not fail now.

Conservative business is afraid of liberal strength in congress. Liberal planners on the other hand, are afraid of conservative strength in congress. Both sides overlook the fact that no legislative program can be railroaded through the opposition. Their representatives and senators will be on the job. The objection that congressional sessions are disturbing to business, furthermore, has been worn shoddy by much misuse. Rain is disturbing to business, too, but it is helpful at the same time. Geneflections to business are going out of style anyway. They were overdone in the late era of too frenzied commercialism.

It is difficult to decide whether politics are taken too seriously or not seriously enough. Perhaps if Americans understood them better, perhaps if they held more closely to the conception of politics as the science of operating government rather than the business of personal aggrandizement, they would lose their reasonable fear as they gained confidence in their ability to manipulate political machinery for the general good. There is one incontrovertible fact part which the critic of congress, and of government in general, cannot depend on logic: Politics will be better when they are made better by the enlistment of better politicians. It is the human element that makes trouble, not the system. The greatest testimonial to the dependability of the system is the fact that it continues to work in the control of unscrupulous operators.

The bark of the coming congress is worse than its bite possibly could be. Fearful things will be proposed and started on their way. As they move along they will be trimmed here, modified there, re-written another place and frequently de-railled entirely and thrown into the scrap heap. The work of the new congress, like the work of every congress before it, will represent in the mass the composite character of its many members—a happy medium between ultra-conservatism and ultra-liberalism. The violent seizure of jitters which is shaking national confidence to its foundations should not be encouraged to get worse merely because the national congress, following the established order of events, is about to convene. The only excuse to get shaky in the knees would be presented if it were not to convene at the appointed time.

What Others Say

"HELL IN INDIA."
Mr. Gandhi is frank. He departs from London saying that he got there what he expected, which was nothing, and he predicts "hell in India." This expression is indefinite, but unamiable. Precisely what kind of hell he apprehends he does not say. His country is capable of producing almost any kind. Some time ago Mr. Gandhi said that, with a continuance of repressive measures, passive resistance would eventually cease to be passive. No doubt he has such a contingency in mind. But he leaves some ground for hope that he has no immediate intention of giving the signal for active resistance. In answer to the question when he will give the signal for battle, he replied: "I think I shall study conditions a while before I give it."

In reality, these "conditions" in India are the things that have caused the failure of the London conference. Mr. Gandhi has himself confessed his inability to bring about such an agreement in India between the Hindus and the Mohammedans as would make possible harmonious national government there. He goes home to a divided India. It is a condition which might well justify a prolonged study on his part.

Just the same, the mahatma takes a very threatening stand. He invites disorder. He predicts a "Calvary of suffering." He says he expects to watch it from his cell in jail, thereby implying an intention to disobey the law. This is rather a weak conclusion for the leader of a national cause. Personally Mr. Gandhi will be safe in jail, and with his monastic tastes this will mean no "Calvary" for him. At this distance, it would seem that a real national leader would prefer such a course of measurable compliance with the law as would leave him out of jail and in a position so to direct events as to secure the ultimate realization of his principles.

Evidently it is Mr. Gandhi's intention to restore the state of things that prevailed before he left India for London. At that time a sort of truce prevailed between the Nationalists and the government, but clashes between Hindus and Mohammedans were frequent. There is a renewed state of soreness between these elements. Very likely clashes will be more frequent than ever. And the Nationalist agitation will continue. Such an agitation, with a renewed conviction in government and other British circles that reconciliation and home rule are impossible, indeed promises a miscellaneous assortment of conditions and occurrences of the sort prefigured in Mr. Gandhi's short and ugly word.—Boston Transcript.

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—My friend Philadelphia Jack O'Brien has been after me for several years to drop around and see him now and then for a little workout. I always made some excuse until the other night when he added to his invitation: "It won't cost you a penny."

I was there next morning before the sun or Jack were up. "Just flip into a pair of shorts and a foot a shower and join you," he called around with Indian clubs. I'll have I'm no particular Adonis in shorts, but for that matter I don't believe Coolidge would be either.

When Jack came out, he took one look and went right into a booming laugh. He finally slowed up but burst out again. "I can't help it," he said, "I just happened to think—ho, ho, ho—of something—har, har, har—I read in the paper this morning." But all the time he was looking at my legs.

He told me first to try a rowing machine. "Just for a little limbering up," he explained. As I would bend forward and tug back like the true gymnosiphist he would chant "Heave ho, heave ho!" An something snapped where my suspenders cross. I couldn't straighten up. "What's the trouble?" asked Jack. "I don't know exactly," I whispered, "but it looks to me as though I have heaved my last ho." Then I whined: "It is rather sad when a man with the best part of life before him suddenly runs out of hos." But he had an idea for taking care of that.

While he was going through setting up exercises and partaking of a light breakfast, he instructed his valet and masseur to iron out the kinks. "And then," he added brightly "we will put on the gloves for several swings a shower, another rich down at volta!"

"Bon, monsieur," I replied quickly as I always do when switching from one language to another. I may not be much of an athlete, but linguistically I am just too cute. How's this for Latin without even looking up from the typewriter: Veni, vidi, vici?

Sometimes I'll be talking along doing far niente and before I know it, I'm on parole française, grosse gesundheit, I'm jabbering in all kinds of language. Fan me if I start swooning again. Anyway the masseur stretched me on a slab. "A slab on a slab," I cracked. You know, full of wit every minute. He ran his fingers lightly over my ticklish torso in a sort of flowery approach and then suddenly smacked! Smackety, smack, smack, he began to beat a bolero up and down the spine. "You bane-smackety, smack, smack—a newspaper fellow," he inquired. I nodded. "But I'm saving up to go into wholesale groceries." I lied hastily, hoping he would let up, the big snore.

After he smacked one side raw, I trembled. "How did you happen to take up the smacking business?" But he didn't reply. He had just discovered a kink in my neck. He'd tell me to relax and then give me a quick twist and there would be an explosive pop. "There must be a little of the firecracker in me," I twittered. He looked at me with a quizzical dumbness. I explained: "Neck goes pop, pop, pop like a firecracker." He grinned: "Yes, sir, that's right. Next time bring your Papa and we fix him, too." After that there was nothing to do but give up.

By this time Jack joined in, but I had yanked a sheet over my legs. He could give me a free workout, but I saw no reason to give him a mess of free laughs. Not with bonds defaulting the way they are and everything. The first thing he did was test my knee jerks with a whack under the knee cap. I know that gag so I kicked high in the air. "Fine," he said, which made a sucker out of him.

Well, sir, then we put on the gloves. "Listen, froggolyde!" I warned, thumping his off bicep, "don't go belting me in the pan, I've been croupy lately anyway, dizzy spells, hot flashes and every other Tuesday ringing in my ears." He told me not to worry, just like the darling bankers tell everybody. And urged: I won't touch you, but you knock my block off." Then he stuck out his powerful chin and I swung from the ankle, missed and swirled into a mystified squat. That aroused my dander—I've been up to my ears in dander ever since the crash anyway—and I tore into him. But he was never there. I beat, spun about, swung again, missed and then began to flail. I'm open to all comers in a flailing match; incidentally, on the way home I'd suddenly stop and begin to flail. In fact I feel a spell coming on me now. Don't hold me! I feel all right.

Pleurisy Symptoms
Pleurisy is a disease that makes its attack without warning. It comes like a thief in the night. The sufferer is taken ill so suddenly that nothing can be done to prevent it.

Sudden pain in the chest should never be overlooked. When the pain is made worse by taking a breath, pleurisy should be suspected. If these signs are present and, in addition, there is fever, a physician should be called.

The symptoms may resemble pleurisy and yet not be pleurisy, of course. But it is wiser that a physician examine the patient and definitely determine the state of affairs. This is important, because neglected pleurisy may become chronic and serious.

Some authorities believe that neglected pleurisy often leads to tuberculosis. Others believe that many a case of pleurisy must be regarded as a sign of tuberculosis already contracted.

Pleurisy often occurs before an attack of pneumonia. It may also follow pneumonia. In any event, well planned supervision is required.

There are different forms of pleurisy, each one being treated in a different way. In early cases of pleurisy, where the pain is excessive, and breathing is painful, strapping of the chest is helpful. The strapping is done by means of adhesive plaster in such a way that the chest wall is kept rigid. The adhesive plaster is applied lightly after expelling the air from the lungs. The tight application controls the chest movements in breathing and in this way lessens the pain.

When the disease takes the form of a "dry pleurisy" in which there

Up from Newsboy

William P. Kenney, newly appointed president of the Great Northern Railway, who rose from a newsboy on the streets of Minneapolis to his present high position in American railroading. It was the late James J. Hill who discovered Kenney in his early days and lifted him up the ladder of success. During the World War, Kenney was Federal Manager of the Great Northern.

treatment is simple, hardly more than rest in bed. It is a different matter when fluid has accumulated in the chest—a condition spoken of as "pleurisy with effusion." In that case it may be necessary to tap the chest wall. This is a much simpler procedure than it sounds. It may be done without moving the patient to the hospital.

One who has had an attack of pleurisy is susceptible to further attacks. For this reason extra precautions should be exercised. It is unwise to take chances.

Elderly people require careful nursing and rest in bed when suffering from pleurisy. The heart should be watched carefully.

Pleurisy may be confused with a pain caused by an inflammation of the nerves running between the ribs. This condition is spoken of as "intercostal neuralgia," the name describing an irritation of the nerves between the ribs. This causes pain quite similar to that found in pleurisy.

In pleurisy the pain is always made worse by deep breathing. Of course, it is less when shallow breathing is practiced. It may be relieved by lying on the affected side.

In intercostal neuralgia the pain is constant, regardless of what position the patient assumes. Deep breathing does not increase nor decrease the pain. There is rarely any fever in intercostal neuralgia, while in pleurisy fever is always present.

Pleurisy is too important a disability to be treated by home remedies. It should be taken seriously. X-ray examinations and examination of the sputum are necessary in order to rule out any possible complications. It does not pay to neglect it.

"MARY FAITH"

by Beatrice Burton

SYNOPSIS

Mary Faith, young and comely orphan, is secretary to Mark Nesbit, wealthy, young, business man. She informs Mark that she is leaving her position to marry Kimberley Farrell, handsome young lawyer, to whom she has been engaged for some time. Invited to Jim's house for dinner, Mary Faith is greeted coldly by his mother. Later, Kim starts Mary Faith by breaking his engagement and asking for the ring. The next morning, Mary Faith informs her co-workers that she is not to be married. She asks them to take back her presents.

CHAPTER VIII

At half past three Mr. Nesbit left the building to go to a bank directors' meeting. He did not get back to the office until six o'clock.

"I'm sorry to keep you like this," he said putting his hand in the door of Mary Faith's small room. "Do you mind staying a little later? I'd like to get my desk cleared to-night."

"I'll be glad to stay," said Mary Faith, and she meant it.

His words were like a reprieve to her. All day she had been dreading the evening meal in the River street house with the Brock girls watching her with their X-ray eyes. A boarding house was so public. You couldn't keep even your sorrow and your humiliation to yourself if you happened to live in one.

It was half past seven by the time he had finished the last of Mr. Nesbit's letters and had locked her desk for the night. She was getting into her raincoat when he opened the door of her room once more.

"It's raining," he said. "I'm going to drive you home."

"I don't mind the rain, Mr. Nesbit. I often take walks when it's raining. I like to slosh through puddles."

"I'm going to drive you home."

One Way to Look At It

Depend on the advertising columns of the Salem News to turn your business into a paying proposition.

You can reach several thousand prospects daily. You cannot afford to miss this large happy family.

When she went downstairs a few minutes later he was standing in the front doorway, waiting for her. Outside the gray closed car that he drove stood at the curb. They got into it. Mary Faith leaned back against the cushions, her eyes on the wet glitter of the streets as they rolled along. The pavements were black and gold, and the lighted shop windows were like giant-size magic lanterns throwing their colors out into the darkness.

A few days before she had lingered before them on her way home from work, enchanted by the lovely things that were on display in them. Enchanted by the snow-white electric ice boxes, by the carved and polished furniture, by the Oriental rugs and the bowls and boxes of Chinese brass.

Now she turned her eyes away from them. The very sight of them had a certain power to make her heart ache. She was back at the typewriter and filing cabinet for good.

"It's almost eight o'clock and you haven't had any dinner," Mr. Nesbit suddenly remembered when they were half way to River street.

"We'll go somewhere and get some," Mary Faith shook her head quickly. "No thanks," she answered.

Mrs. Puckett always has Aches put some away for me when I'm late. And I'm tired. I'd rather go straight home if you don't mind."

The dining room windows were dark when they drove up before Mrs. Puckett's. Mary Faith let herself quietly into the house, hoping that she would meet no one on her way upstairs. But as she closed the front door Mrs. Puckett called out to her from the parlor.

"Mary Faith!—Didn't I just see you drive up in a gray closed car?"

Mary Faith knew that she had seen her. Whenever an automobile stopped before the house Mrs. Puckett hurried to the front windows. She had the ears of a fox and eyes in the back of her head.

"Yes," Mary Faith came down the hall and stood between the ruby curtains that hung in the doorway of the parlor. "That was Mr. Nesbit's car. He brought me home to-night, Mrs. Puckett."

He never had driven her home before, and Mrs. Puckett knew it. Her eyebrows shot up under the fringe of her pompadour. "Oh—ho!" she said. "So that's it! So that's why we aren't getting married in two weeks! So that's why we've changed our plans! We have a new beau!"

Miss Allie Brock raised her eyes from the game of solitaire that she was playing on the marble-topped table.

"It looks to me like a case of 'off with the old love and on with the new,'" she remarked archly. "That's the way things look to me, Mrs. Puckett."

If that was the way things looked to them it was a blessing, said Mary Faith to herself. And in her heart she thanked Mr. Nesbit for driving her home.

"Good night, everybody," she said and escaped from them before they could ask her any more questions.

Her room was unbearable to her that night, filled as it was with things that reminded her of Kim. The books they had read together. The pink-sprigged dishes and the etching that she had bought long ago. The scrapbook of recipes and household hints, his picture in a leather frame on her desk. His picture.

She picked it up and stood looking at it for a minute or two. Then she opened the drawer of the desk and laid it face-downward under some old letters.

And for a moment she stood there, pressing her hands against her heart as if she were trying to deny the intolerable pain in it.

Once during the night she woke up.

In the darkness everything came rushing back to her—all the unhap-found its way through the traffic of the streets. "I never knew Mr. Mark to have an accident until this mornin'," he shook his head.

"What happened to him, Loftus?" "He tipped over in his car—de little gray one," the man explained. "I seen him drive out de garage and pretty soon I heard a horn tootin' out by de gate. It kep' on tootin' and pretty soon I goes to see what's wrong out dere. And dere's Mr. Mark's car throwed over in de ditch and him settin' on top of it. He made de curve too quick, he say."

The Blue Valley road was like a frozen river and Loftus drove over it slowly and cautiously. It was almost one o'clock when he turned into a gravel driveway that ran along between high hedged of evergreen.

At the end of it stood a long low house of field stone. Smoke rose from its chimneys, giving promise of warmth and comfort within. A white colic came running across the snowy lawn from the field-stone stable.

HOLY TRINITY ENGLISH LUTHERAN

East State st. at Woodland ave. Rev. George D. Keister, pastor.

Second Sunday in Advent. Sunday school 9:45 (2 Timothy 4:6-18.) H. E. Smith, supt. When the labors of the mighty St. Paul ended, it may have seemed that Christianity would also stop. Such was not the case. This servant of God was only an instrument that God used to propagate the faith of Jesus Christ.

The Kingdom of God does not rest solely upon the shoulders of a few. They may help to bear the burden. The main responsibility is that of God. Laborers for Christ will lay down tasks, but the Kingdom of our God still marches on to greater glory and progress. No individual is, or has been so important in the world that all depends upon him. God does raise up men and women to serve Him and to carry on His Kingdom. It is an honor to be found worthy to serve and labor for God.

Morning worship 11. "Searching the Scriptures." The Book of Books is the Holy Bible. There is no other book equal to it, no, nor ever shall be. It is the Book that stands and sees other books pass into oblivion, but it lives on forever. No word of any man can be compared with the Holy Scriptures. It is our book of authority for faith and practice.

"How readeth the law?" said Jesus. Thus are we to find the truth, which alone can be found in His Holy Word. What are we to believe? Look into the Word of God. Doctrines and beliefs that are contrary to this Book are to be looked upon with suspicion and distrust. Churches that have their faith based either partly or wholly upon other sources are to be watched else they soon elevate man's word, on a level with God's Word. "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but the Word of the Lord endureth forever."

INVITED TO INSTALLATIONS

Salem chapter No. 334, Order of the Eastern Star, has received invitations to installation ceremonies of four chapters in towns in this district for next week.

The first on Wednesday evening will be at Niles. Dinner will precede the rites and those planning to go are to make reservations with Dr. T. Estelle Wright, secretary of Salem chapter, by Monday morning.

Other invitations include both Negley and East Liverpool on next Thursday night and the following Saturday night at Canton.

At Canton, there will be a reception at 5 p. m. for Worthy Grand Matron Olive Williams, of Akron, followed by a turkey dinner at 6. Salem chapter members planning to attend must have their reservations in by next Wednesday.

PIONEER CLUB

A "treasure hunt" into Japan added interest at a meeting of the Pioneer club of the Presbyterian church Friday evening at the church. Robert Womer read the scripture lesson.

The girls sewed on articles to be sent in a Christmas box to the Campbell house, near Youngstown, while the boys played games.

Refreshments were served by Martha Williams and Ruth Ruggie.

DIVISION 1 MEETS

Division 1 of the Presbyterian church held a meeting Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Clyde McKee, North Union ave., with 31 members in attendance.

Present day events in relation to the church were discussed. Refreshments were served by Mrs. McKee and her associate hostess, Mrs. Howard Chamberlain.

ANNIVERSARY PARTY

The Past Noble Grands association of Home lodge No. 110, Daughters of Rebekah, will hold a Christmas party next Wednesday evening at the hall and at this time celebrate the second anniversary of the association. Gifts will be exchanged.

ASSOCIATION PARTY

The Salem High school association will hold a party tonight. The program from 8 until 8:30 will be in the auditorium, followed by dancing in the gym from 8:30 until 11:30.

These numbers compose the program: Vocal solo, Ralph Snyder, accompanied by Mrs. Snyder; piano selections, Calvin Conway; tap dance, Betty Lee Kenneweg, with her mother, Mrs. Ray Kenneweg playing the accompaniment on the piano. Bartholomew's orchestra will play the dance program.

AT WINDLE HOME

Three tables of bridge were in play when Mrs. W. C. Windle entertained club associates Friday afternoon at her home, Homewood ave. Prizes were presented Mrs. Charles Snyder and Mrs. Arthur Brian. Lunch was served. The members will meet again next week.

slim, with long slender hands, humorous Irish eyes, and red gold boyish bob—knows how to do a lot of things besides playing bridge.

She is rated the best woman player in the world.

She was the late Wilbur Whitehead's assistant—and it was while she was working for Whitehead that Lenz and some of the other experts to whom her husband playfully refers as "the elder statesmen" taught her to play bridge—when she met Ely Culbertson, then a discouraged young Russian emigre, to whom the thought of earning his living by his favorite pastime had never occurred.

Launches His Career

"You're better than you think you are," she told him, married him, and launched him on the career which is to reach its peak next week in the match of Culbertson & Culbertson vs. Lenz & Jacoby.

Bridge is Mrs. Ely Culbertson's business. She has taught hundreds of people how to play the game. She has played herself in so many tournaments that she cannot remember offhand how many. She writes about bridge, thinks about bridge, lives on bridge—and occasionally plays bridge "just for fun."

But it's not her favorite pastime. In Mrs. Culbertson's existence there are two things more important than bridge. They are: A small blond girl named Joyce, "and a sturdy little blond boy, who was christened Ely Bruce Culbertson, but who bears the nickname, "Jump-bid Ely."

elect. They are Leslie Cobbs, Salem; L. A. Wallover and Roy Rinehart, East Liverpool and Max V. Dickerson, Lisbon.

In the contest for prosecuting attorney on the Republican ticket, three names have been announced, these being George Lafferty, assistant prosecuting attorney during the two terms of Prosecuting Atty. E. Bauknecht; Harrison I. McCarthy of Salem, and William S. Foulks of East Liverpool.

There is to be no election of common pleas judge in this county next year, as the present term of Judge W. F. Jones will not expire until two years later.

Murphy Faces Opposition

The big question in the district is the extent of opposition. Congressman Frank Murphy of Steubenville will find in the primary, there will be opposition at the November election. From present indications Murphy will face the barrier in May with John G. Nichols, St. Clairsville, former probate judge of Belmont county, and Charles L. Snyder, Steubenville councilman, as contestants for the Republican nomination. Both have announced, Snyder indicating he will seek support on a wet platform.

State Senator Earl Lewis of St. Clairsville, has been mentioned frequently as considering the race for congress but has made no decision, reports crediting him with having his eye on the lieutenant governorship, or lacking that, seeking renomination for the senate.

Judge Farr Mentioned

Judge Louis Farr, Columbiana county member of the district court of appeals, is reported to be a prospective candidate, but this has not been confirmed.

That there will be two candidates for the Democratic nomination for congress seems certain. Lawrence Inhoff, St. Clairsville, former probate judge and clerk of courts of Belmont county, and Emerson Campbell, St. Clairsville, former Belmont county auditor, have been announced.

Receiver Is Named

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 5.—On application of his former wife, who said he had defaulted on alimony payments of $100 a month, a receiver has been named here for the property of Ellis O. Jones, auction bridge expert and former editor of "Life." The receiver is Charles R. Swickard, Columbus.

Jones lives in Hollywood, Calif.

riage license was obtained by Miss Bow and Bell a short time previously, Schuyler said. The actress gave her age as 26 and Bell his as 28.

In denying he and Miss Bow were married, Bell intimated announcement of a wedding might endanger certain contracts the actress has. Miss Bow is expected to return to Hollywood about January 1, to re-enter pictures.

Immediately after the ceremony, Bell and Miss Bow left for the former's ranch, on the desert, 60 miles from here.

Miss Bow's career has been one of the most sensational in Hollywood. She never before has been reported married.

PROBATE CODE IS DISAPPROVED

Jurisdiction In Criminal Cases Removed; Estate Work Increased

It took away, in the procedure for settling estates.

"A new section requires that upon the filing of an inventory, the court must give 10 days notice by registered mail or otherwise to all interested in the estate, except creditors; set a date of the hearing on the inventory and make a finding, and enter the same on the journal."

Another innovation is the provision for the administrator or executor in every estate filing a schedule of debts not later than five months after his appointment.

Upon the filing of the schedule of debts the court must forthwith set a day, not later than one month after the day such schedule of debts was filed, for a hearing on the same. And it shall give at least ten days notice by registered mail or otherwise of the hearing to the executor or administrator, the surviving spouse, all the next of kin, all beneficiaries under the will, all known creditors, and the attorney or attorneys, if known, representing any of the aforementioned persons.

More Clerical Work

The court must enter its finding on the journal, and tax the costs as may be equitable. Judge Riddle points out that there is an average of one estate per day filed in this court and that there are sometimes more than a hundred heirs and many creditors in an estate. Consequently, he says, the making of the notices provided for in these new sections will involve much additional clerical work.

Our western coast should monopolize the trade of Asia, and the Pacific ocean, with 1,000,000,000 human beings on the far side of it, should be the earth's greatest commercial body of water, as the Mediterranean was once, and as the Atlantic is now.

But we recognize only gold as money. Asia has no gold, only silver that we have boycotted, destroying its value. Therefore Asia cannot buy from us. She buys from England, because with gold discarded as the standard of value the British pound is cheaper.

THIS WRITER, who at the moment, owns not a share of any mining stock or an ounce of silver except in forks and spoons, believes that President Hoover and his advisers could restore prosperity quickly by stabilizing silver value as money, at some reasonable point above the cost of production on this continent, say a ratio of 20 to 1. He believes further that if this is not done 1932 with its election will come and go with no decided change in business conditions.

For the world to think of transacting its business with only $10,000,000,000 of real money on earth, about 10 per cent of the United

Midwest Leads Nation In 1931 All-America Grid Selections

THE DAY IN SPORTS

ALL-AMERICA SELECTIONS
PITT FANS DISAPPOINTED
SALEM PLAYS ALLIANCE

Another football season comes to an end with post-mortem discussions and all-star and all-America selections that bring with them the sad conclusion that you can't please all of the people all of the time.

There's an all-America team in today's News, picked in a nationwide poll by the Associated Press and to many fans it will prove satisfactory while others, especially those hailing from Pittsburgh and other followers of the Pitt grid team, will not be especially grateful for certain selections.

Thomas Yarr, Notre Dame center, is selected over Ralph Daugherty of Pittsburgh despite the fact that he was decisively outplayed by the latter when the Irish defeated the Panthers, 25-12, while James MacMurdo, Ellwood City's giant tackle, also of Pitt, is relegated to a second place berth.

The 1931 football season was one which was blessed with the greatest number of stars in the game's history. There were as many different opinions as there were sports writers, coaches and officials. No team can be picked that will be greeted with unanimous favor. One man's pick, if he is blessed with a knowledge of football, is as good as his neighbor's.

Today Salem High's Quakers end a rather unique football season when they play Alliance High's Aviators at Mount Union stadium. The season is unique in the fact that the Red and Black was both a great team and a mediocre machine; the campaign was marked by both success and dismal failure. Both defeats chalked up against the team were sustained from eleven considered inferior to Salem; the tie game with Youngstown South was a disappointing outcome.

The team came through with unexpected displays of talent in some games, in others its exhibition of strength was a sad disappointment. But, through it all comes the fact that seven games were won, only two lost and one tied. But, perhaps success is not measured from a win, lose standpoint any more.

By the time this is read Salem will either have won or lost another game, or perhaps the contest will end in no-decision. Another post-mortem will be held, players will be congratulated and condemned. Coach Floyd W. Stone will be the center of one debate, Coach George Wilcoxen of another.

You can't please all of the people all of the time, especially if they are football fans.

Notre Dame Players Voted Three Berths On All-Star Squads

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—As the smoke from the barrage of All-America ballots cleared away today, the great mid-west emerged with a clear-cut advantage over all rival sections on the football battlefields.

Repeating their conquests of 1930, the outstanding stars of the American midlands carried off six of the eleven positions on the All-America consensus, compiled by The Associated Press from the ballots of sports writers and editors in all parts of the country.

The south and far west, each of which disputes the mid-west's claims to team supremacy, gained two positions. The lone eastern representative is William Barry Wood, Jr., Harvard's captain and the outstanding choice of the nation for the quarterback role occupied for the previous two years by Frank Carideo of Notre Dame.

Schwartz Repeats
Notre Dame, with three places, and Northwestern, with two, duplicate their achievements in the 1930 Associated Press balloting. The all-star representatives of the Irish are Marchmont Schwartz, in the backfield, Captain Tom Yarr at center and Frank Hoffman at guard.

Northwestern placed Pug Rentner among the ball carriers and Dallas Marvill at tackle. The sixth mid-western honor man is Minnesota's 212-pound captain, Clarence Munn. The south furnishes the two All-America ends in Captain Gerald Dalrymple of Tulane and Vernon (Catfish) Smith, Georgia's colorful performer.

The far west's contributions to the team are Erny Pinckert, star blocking back of the University of Southern California, and Paul Schweigler, great tackle of the University of Washington.

Smith and Dalrymple easily proved the class of the ends, riding along on a tidal wave of votes. Captain Henry Cronkite of Kansas State and Captain Johnny Orr of Colgate gained strong support, as did Garrett Arbelbide of Southern California and a comparative stranger to "big league" ballyhoo, Fred Felber of North Dakota.

Marvill was well ahead of the field in the final tabulation of votes for tackle but Schweigler of Washington had a strenuous time gaining the decision on the other side of the line. Fine tackles were numerous, especially in the mid-west.

Kurth and Krause of Notre Dame, Riley of Northwestern, MacMurdo and Quatse of Pittsburgh, Price of the Army and Rhea of Nebraska all caught the eye of the experts.

Baker Closes Strong
Munn and Hoffman were the outstanding choices for guards. Johnny Baker of Southern California undoubtedly would have given either first- or second choice a stronger run if he had performed against all rivals as he did in playing the heroic role against Notre Dame.

Evans of Northwestern, Hickman of Tennessee and Kabat of Wisconsin were other leaders but the list of noteworthy guards also included Horwitz of Chicago, Zintell of Holy Cross and Zeller of Indiana.

Yarr's only real rivals in the balloting for center were Ralph Daugherty of Pittsburgh and Maynard Morrison of Michigan. Experts who have seen all three perform are sharply divided in opinion. The majority expressed the belief Daugherty outplayed Yarr when they met on the gridiron at South Bend, even though Pittsburgh was humbled that day by the Ramblers.

Many Brilliant Backs
So bright and numerous were the year's backfield luminaries that the limitation of the All-America squad to 11 leaves a flock of stars with nothing better to show than an entry in the "honorable mention" list.

Down in West Virginia they regard Cliff Battles of West Virginia as a combination of Orango and Carle. But Tucson of St. Mary's similarly impressed all who saw him perform on the Pacific Coast for the team that beat Southern California and California on successive Saturdays.

Monnet ran wild for Michigan State. Jack Crickard was a slashing ball carrier for Harvard. So were Jack Ferraro, Cornell sophomore, Ralph Hewitt of Columbia and Jim Murphy of Fordham. Minnesota partisans likened Manders to Joesting and Nagurski of All-America fame.

Notre Dame Dominates
For the past three years, Notre Dame has so far dominated the All-America selections as to double the number of entries from any other institution. Eight places have been won by the Fighting Irish aggregations of 1929-31, the including Schwartz twice and Carideo twice.

Northwestern has won four places while two each have been gained by Minnesota, Harvard, Pittsburgh, Southern California, Alabama and Ohio State.

For recreation Bonner Miller, veteran St. Louis golf enthusiast, daily walks around Forest Park, a distance of six miles.

Exchanging "Hooks" for Books

Jim Maloney (lower left), well-known Boston prize fighter, has temporarily deserted his jabs and hooks for Blackstone and his law at the University of Miami, at Miami, Fla., where he is enrolled as a student. During his spare time, Jim instructs the university boxers in the fine points of ring science. His classmates are shown soaking up fistic technique under Jim's tutelage.

Pinckert, Schwartz End Grid Careers in Blaze of Glory

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Two great backs, and old rivals in one of the country's outstanding intersectional contests, for the second straight year find themselves running mates on The Associated Press All-America team.

They are Erny Pinckert, blocker extraordinary of the University of Southern California, and Marchmont Schwartz, who in the opinion of an overwhelming majority of experts, is the outstanding ball carrier of the year.

Schwartz Takes Up Law
This is the last year of football for both Schwartz intends to return to the Notre Dame law school next year, but will be ineligible for further competition. Pinckert, who is taking a course in art and architecture, will be graduated before another football season rolls around.

Both backs are finishing three years of competition, and both have been outstanding in every game played this year. In the game in which Pinckert and his Trojan mates avenged a 27-0 drubbing last year by Notre Dame, by beating out the "Fighting Irish" 16-14 in the final quarter.

Pinckert Heads Offense
Pinckert all season has been the key of the Trojan attack which has been unstopable following an opening game defeat by St. Mary's. This year, as during his other two seasons of varsity play, he has been in almost all of every game.

His talents have been used mostly in blocking, though in the time he has carried the ball he has made substantial yardage. He is not called on to carry more often because the Trojans have nobody capable of filling his shoes in bowling over the defense.

TWENTY GRID TILTS SLATED IN NATION AS SEASON CLOSES

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Close to twenty games, most of them for the benefit of the unemployed, were on the state today, the last big football date of the season.

Undeclared Teams Play

National interest was focused on two great southern eleven, Tulane and Tennessee, both undefeated and the former united as well. Tulane, with an invitation to the Rose bowl game New Year's day almost certainly hanging on the outcome, sailed forth to battle the Cougars of Washington state, Pacific coast champion; a year ago.

Tennessee has traveled north for the first time in several years for a tussle with the New York university Violets.

The Tulane-Washington state game a regularly scheduled battle, looked like an almost certain Tulane victory in advance calculations. Tennessee ruled a slight favorite over N. Y. U.

Tournament Scheduled

Other games were about evenly split among the east, midwest, far west and south. In the east, regular scheduled games pitted Pennsylvania against Navy and Maryland against Western Maryland. For charity, Yale, Dartmouth, Holy Cross and Brown joined in an elimination tournament in the Yale bowl with Yale meeting Holy Cross and Dartmouth playing Brown in preliminary games. The winners were to clash in the final.

Carnegie Tech and Duquesne were paired at Pittsburgh in another charity engagement.

With the exception of the Haskell-Tulsa clash, the midwestern program was devoted exclusively to charity purposes. Benefit games there involved Kansas and Washburn; Kansas State and Wichita; Missouri and St. Louis; and Oklahoma City and Oklahoma.

Trojans Meet Washington

In the far west, Southern California sought to clinch the Pacific coast title by turning back Washington. Added attractions for charity brought together Southern Methodist and St. Mary's of Oakland, Calif., Utah and Oregon State, and Nebraska and the Colorado Aggies.

Tulane, of course, headlined the southern program, but there was a Southern conference game between Florida and Kentucky as well as charity engagements involving Centre and South Carolina, and Chattanooga and Alabama.

Considering that the fight was waged in the normally Republican Fifth Congressional District, where the outstanding campaign issue had been the record of the Hoover Administration, the election of Percy U. THEATER Attractions AT THE STATE

Clark Gable is paired with Joan Crawford in "Possessed," the feature Sunday, Monday and Tuesday at the State theater.

The romantic team of Joan Crawford and Clark Gable in a dramatic story of a factory girl who becomes the toast of New York's Park ave, forms the plot for the coming week's leading theater attraction, "Possessed," starting a three-day run Sunday at the State.

Adapted from the Edgar Selwyn stage hit, "The Mirage," the play presents Gable, a native Ohioan who spent his early days in Cadiz, Ravenna and Akron, and Miss Crawford together for the second time. Wallace Ford, noted stage player, heads a supporting cast that includes "Skeets" Gallagher, Frank Conroy, John Miljan and Marjorie White.

Grand Shows Comedy
Another Joe E. Brown comedy, "Local Boy Makes Good," will be the Grand theater's attraction Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Dorothy Lee, Ruth Hal, Edward J. Nugent and Edward Woods support the comedian.

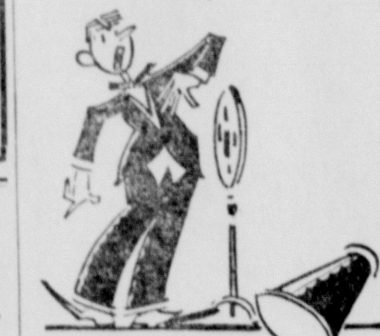

Mary Brian, Geoffrey Kerr and Joseph Cawthorne share honors in "The Runaround," scheduled at the Grand theater Wednesday and Thursday. Johnny Hines makes his first appearance in a talkie to play an important role in the picture while the cast also includes Marie Provost.

Another big attraction is a double feature which will play at the State Friday and Saturday. The main entertainment will come from a Stan Laurel-Oliver Hardy comedy, "Beau Hunk," while James Cagney is starred in the other full-length feature, "Blonde Crazy."

Late Robert Ames Starred
Edward Everett Horton plays the lead role in "Smart Woman," the attraction at the Grand Wednesday and Thursday. The late Robert Ames and Mary Astor are other leading players, while Noel Francis and John Halliday lead the supporting cast.

Johnnie Brown Mack, Leo Carrillo, "Slim" Summerville, Dorothy Burgess and Frank Campeau play leading roles in "Lasco of the Rio Grande," at the Grand Friday and Saturday.

Milady Ready to Fight Proposed Cosmetics Tax

Opposing Bill to Levy 10 Per Cent Luxury Tax on Beauty Preparations, Women Assert Cosmetics Are Really Necessities.

The wolf may be scratching at the door; the icebox may be as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard, but upon milady's dressing table will be found the array of pots and jars that contain the magic balm which gives that peachy and cream complexion, and the appealing cupid's bow. Despite the world depression America's beauty bill for last year was $750,000,000, and it continues to grow. Now, some of our law-makers have suddenly awakened to the possibilities of the cosmetic business as a fertile source of revenue and a bill has been introduced to provide for a 10 per cent luxury tax on lip-stick, rouge and other aids to beauty. But the women are up in arms to oppose the passage of what they call an unjust imposition. They deny that cosmetics are a luxury, asserting that they are as much of a necessity as a man's neckties or razor. Furthermore, they say they owe it to the stronger (?) sex to make themselves as pleasant to look upon as possible. When one considers the amount of pounding, pinching and paring that a woman will undergo for her looks, one can form a good estimate of the ferocity with which they will fight the bill that might deprive them of their make-up.

The Meaning of Saving

Saving does not mean hoarding; it means wise spending. It means money to obtain those things you wish most — a home, advantages for your family and cash for emergencies.

These are the things worthwhile and they are also the things that those who save can obtain.

Think this over, then decide how much you will deposit each week in a savings account at this institution. It pays!
